- On average printing reports costs you 4 cents per page.
- How many reports do you print?
- How many pages is that?
- How much is that costing you?
- Do users need to leave their desk to get reports from printers?
- Does I.T. operations distribute your reports manually?
- Do your printers jam? Run out of paper? Run out of ink?
- Do reports get lost? Picked up by the wrong user?
- Are your printers a bottleneck?
- Is printing really the most efficient or fastest method to distribute information in this day and age?
- Can you automatically archive and file any report if required?
- Can you easily retrieve historical reports from your filing system?
- Can you automatically deliver reports direct to users eMail inbox?
- Can you automatically convert your report data into formats your users need such as Excel, PDF, CSV, Word etc?
- Can you split large reports into sections and eMail each section?
- Can you automatically clean OUTQ's and reduces disk usage?
- Softcopy make more sense than hardcopy!

There has to be a better way!
